Neal Griffin is the author of the acclaimed Newburg Mystery Series. The latest, By His Own Hand, is the story of Henry Tyler Hayes, a Native American teenager found dead in the woods, the apparent victim of a tragic suicide. Neal uses his vast police experience, plus his familiarity with small town living to create a realistic Midwestern noir that bestselling author Jon Land called, “A visionary, scathing, supremely effective peek into the darkness that permeates small-town Americana.”

Growing up in west-central Wisconsin on a steady diet of Joseph Wambaugh novels and episodes of Police Story, Neal never considered any career other than being a cop. During his twenty-seven year career, he worked as a patrol cop, field training officer, member of SWAT, Hostage Negotiator, Narcotics Investigator, Gang Enforcement Specialist; and, Supervisor of a Homicide Unit. In his books, Neal tackles the serious issues that face American policing, leaving the reader with an untainted insider's view.

A resident of San Diego County, Neal also has a home in Burnett County where he writes and pursues his other passions: beer, cheese and Packer football.

Mr. Griffin's books will be available for purchase and signing.
